

“Why did the Budget charge me $200? Understanding Budget Deposits

If you recently rented a vehicle from Budget | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | and noticed a $200 charge on your account, you are not alone. Many customers encounter this situation, and it usually relates to Budget’s rental policies rather than an | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | unexpected or hidden fee. Understanding why the charge appears can help ease concerns and clarify the purpose of the payment.

In most cases, the $200 charge is a security deposit or authorization hold | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | placed on your credit or debit card at the start of your rental. Car rental companies, including Budget, use this method to cover | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | potential additional costs, such as fuel, tolls, damage, or late returns. The hold is separate from the actual rental cost and is refunded once the vehicle | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | is returned in proper condition, with no outstanding charges.

For example, if you rented a car for $100, Budget may | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | place a $200 hold in addition to that amount, showing a temporary $300 authorization. After your rental ends, the $200 is released back to your account, | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | provided there are no extra fees. The refund timeline can vary depending on your bank, often taking three to seven business days.

Other reasons for a $200 charge may include | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | violations of rental terms. If the car was returned late, dirty, damaged, or without a full fuel tank, Budget may apply charges to cover those issues. Additionally, if a customer | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | used a debit card instead of a credit card, Budget may require a higher deposit as part of its risk policy.

It’s important to review your rental agreement | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | before picking up the vehicle. The agreement outlines how much will be held on your card and under what conditions additional fees may apply. If you see a $200 charge | ☎ +1~8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | and believe it’s an error, you can contact Budget customer service with your rental agreement and payment receipt to request clarification or dispute the charge.

In summary, the $200 charge from Budget is usually | ☎ +1-8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | not a random fee but a standard deposit hold designed to protect the company against potential extra costs. While it may feel inconvenient, the amount is generally | ☎ +1-8 77~[6 84.]~43. 54 | refunded once the rental ends smoothly. Always check your contract and monitor your bank account to ensure the refund is processed correctly.”